THE PROGRESS OF THE FAIR

EXHIBITS ARE NOW IN COURSE OF PREPARATION.

Practical Road Building Will Be Illustrated-The Work Going On in the Woman's Building-Stephenson's Locomotive.

[Culled from Chicago Papers,] Practical road making will be illustrated in a special exhibit to be prepared under the directions of Chief Buchanan, of the department of agriculture. A section of the roadway showing the development in the science of building roads will be constructed, reaching from the Live-stock Pavilion to Greenfield's efficient and popular City Mar-ahal, Mr. Jeff C. The machinery for making paving bricks, pulverizing stone for macadam, and the like of course was ordered into Machinery Hall; asphaltum, granite paving blocks, and such material will be exhibited within the structure devoted to mines and mining; the material used in the construction of pavements of wood will be displayed within the Forestry Building. The transportation and manufactures departments came in for their share, and the general subject of road-making was assigned in the classification to the department of liberal arts, and so, what was every one's business was attended to by no one. Finally, however, Mr. Buchanan, believing that the agriculturists were vitally interested in good roads, took the matter up, and was given permission to make a general exhibit. The guides will be divided into five companies under the command of sergeants, the officers to be chosen from the earliest applicants. The grounds will be divided into districts, and there will be district headquarters where visitors may apply for the services of informationgivers.

Stephenson's Locomotive. The original locomotive "John Bull," built in England by Stephenson and shipped built in England by Stephenson and shipped to Bordentown, N. J., in 1831, has stood for a number of years in the National Museum at Washington. The locomotive and two old passenger coaches ran on the Camden & Ambay road back in 1836. The train was recently transferred to the Pennsylvania milroad shops, and a week before the opening of the Fair it will start for Chicago. The train will run by easy stages, making the entire journey in daylight, to give people along the line a chance to see the curiosity. A number of passengers will be carried from point to point along the line. It is claimed that the antique locomotive can pull the coaches along at the rate of thirty miles an hour. No spurts of speed will be attempted on the long run, the Pennylvania people being satisfied with bringing the train to Chicago at a moderate rate of speed.

Cath Ille Exhibit.

Cath die Exhibit. Catholic authors and publishers, both in America and in Europe, have taken a livery interest in the project of a collection of Catholic authors. It is the desire to secure a copy of every Catholic author out of print, as also a complete set of every Catholic annual, quarterly, monthly or other review or periodical published in England, Ireland, Canada, or the United States, and an appeal has been sent to the regular and secular clergy and Catholic laity who have duplicates of such authors or periodicals to contribute to the collection. All contributions should be sent to Brother Maurelian, La Salle Institute, Chicago, who has charge of the Catholic educational exhibit.

Arrival of Exhibits. For the first time since exhibits began to arrive at Jackson Park the domestic arrivals yesterday exceeded those of foreign nations. An average of 200 cars per day was reached last week, and the figures lor the current week will reach the 500 mark. Decorating the Woman's Building.

The one department at the Fair in which women have full sway is more nearly ready for the grand opening than any other. This is their own building—the house planned by a woman architect, hurried to completion by a woman, and then decorated by women artists. This is the building that was almost done before many other—ere fairly commenced.

It is now filling up with exhibits. Two large rooms are jammed with cases packed with displays. Some of them are from Germany, others from France, and a number of the biggest boxes came from England. Japan contributes a large number, of big cases. The offerings of American women are just beginning to come in. Within ten days it is thought that all the boxes will be in the building, ready for unpacking. The work of arranging the exhibits in place will occupy but a few days, as most of them are light and can be quickly put in the show cases now almost done,

For more than a month women who paint roses that seem to be sprinkled with dew have stood on a scaffold in the upper gallery, painting a frieze around the parfor of the building, the room where all the grand receptions will be held. This is known as the Cincinnati room, because artists from that city decorate it and will contribute most of the furniture in it. Miss Pitman and two assistants will soon finish their work. The broad frieze is an copper and red tones, extending entirely around the room. The rose designs will also appear on the ceiling. On either side of the

The result may be that the Town Board will organize another company.

A NEW SPORT FOR THE GYM-

The Y. M. C. A. Teams.

For a long while after the gymnasium became an essential part of the Young Men's Christian Association, and while the idea of "muscular Christianity" was taking hold of the public mind, physical directors were confronted by the necessity for a game which could be played indoors by young and old of both sexes. Basket-ball, invented and intro

Basket ball has been known for a year and it has survived the various tests that have been applied to it, and has steadily developed until it has a set of well-defined rules. The game months ago, and four teams of nine men each have been drilled in the various points of the game until they are nearly perfect and are looking around for a larger field.

PURPOSES AND CONDITIONS.

It is not a game intended merely for any ment, but it is the attempted solution o problem which has been pressing on physe educators. Most of the games which played out of doors are unsuitable for indo and consequently whenever the season close the game, and all the benefits derived there

There were certain conditions to be met by the game which was required, and these had to be complied with before it was pronounced satisfactory:

1. It should be such as could be played on any kind of ground—in a gymnasium, a large room or a field. This is especially necessary in large cities, where a good-sized field is unaccessible. Basket-ball can be played in a gymnasium 12x20, or can be played in an ordinary foot-ball field.

2. It should be so that it could be played by any number of men at once. And in the rules as amended there is no limit to the number of men that may play when only recreation is desired. In this case often as many as fifty men on a side have been accommodated.

3. It should exercise a man all round, and 3. It should exercise a man all round, and this undoubtedly the game does. The legs are used to sustain the body and the arms in handling an object, both normal functions. In the bendings and twistings of the trunk and limbs the vital organs receive such exercise as will make them nealthy and keep them strong.

4. It should be so attractive that men would want to play it for its own sake, as they desire to play a game of billiards, to test their skill.

5. It should be easy to lears, and any one can master the rules of basket-ball at a single lesson. HOW THE GAMB IS PLAYED.

The goals are two baskets suspended about ten feet from the floor. The basicts are thirty inches in diameter and the field is 150 feet long. Of course if the game is played in an open field is 160 feet long. Of course if the game is played in an open field the field may be made longer, giving an opportunity for better play and laignment. The object of the game is to put the ball into your opponents goal, which may be done from any part of the grounds by throwing with one or both hands, under the following conditions:

BASKET-BALL BULES.

1. The ball is put in play as follows: The teams line up in their respective positions and the referee throws the ball up in the middle of the field. This is done at the beginning of the game, at the beginning of the second half, after each goal, when a foul has been made and whenever time has been called. 2. The ball may be thrown in any direction with one or both hands. 3. The ball may be batted in any direction with the open hand or hands. 4. The ball can not be struck with the fists or kicked. Lyie Justice, aten-year-old boy, was arrested this afternoon by detectives Thornton and McGuff on a charge of burglary. The boy was taken to the police station and confessed that he had participated in seventeen robberies, chiefly in the Lexington and Hoyt avenue districts. He implicates several other boys and young men, who will be arrested. The lad's story in effect, is that he and others organized a band of manarauders that preyed upon all classes of property. The police have recovered a sack full of stolen goods, including watches, sirguns and an infinite variety of brica-brac.

Young Justice sat on a chair in Chief Splann's office and told the stories of the robberies without a change of countenance. He said he would go to a house and ask if a certain person lived there, making inquiries for fictitious people. Fractice at the Gymnasium.

Every evening the members of these teams may be seen at the gymnasium practicing for the coming matches, and it is beginning to be understood that while the progress of the game appears to the uninitiated onlooker as a huge scramble, that coolness of judgment, quickness and a good eye are essential. In some paces the game is played by women in exactly the same manner as by men, and it suits them wonderfully well. They are quick and make good players when once they really understand what to do and how they are allowed to do it.

The game has taken hold here and is awak-

Connellsville, Pa., April 1s—Mountain fires are raging all along the eastern slope of the Chestnut ridge and Laurel Hill mountains. The worst fire is burning about one mile auth of the Jumoville Soldiers' Orphan School, six miles east of Undontown. Several farm-houses and barrs are reported to have burned iast night and to-day the wind is carrying the fire along at a rapid rate toward the orphan school, causing much apprehension. The dry weather of the past few weeks his made the underbrush and leaves on the mountains like parchment, and once set on fire, it sweeps along with great rapidity. The farmers in the vicinity have all plowed furrows about their houses and barrs to prevent the fires from reaching them.
